PNEUMONIA IS FATAL TO VETERAN DETECTIVE

W. B. Martin, of Homicide Squad, Passes; Work Is Praised.

W. B. (Bartie) Martin, veteran Atlanta detective and former head of the vice squad, died at about 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon in Georgia Baptist hospital.

Martin, who was 43 years of age, was stricken with pneumonia last week. He was known as one of the most efficient investigators in the department, and had many notable crime solutions to his credit.

A native of Atlanta, Martin was appointed a patrolman on December 12, 1922. In 1928, he was appointed a detective, being assigned to the vice squad.

He served for a time as head of the vice squad, and in 1932 was assigned to holdup investigation with Detective D. L. Taylor. Later Martin and Taylor were assigned to the homicide squad, of which Martin was a member at the time of his death.

One of Martin's most notable achievements was his work in connection with the robbery of J. B. Martin, of Bell City, Ala., wholesale drug salesman, who was held up by two men in an automobile near Austell in July, 1935.

After beating and robbing Martin, the bandits tied him to a tree in a lonely section of the old Campbell county section.

With Taylor, Martin investigated all clues which resulted in the arrest of the two bandits 24 hours after the salesman was found.

Those arrested for the crime were Carl Bolton and Eugene Bell. Bell received a 12-to-20-year sentence, and Bolton was sentenced to 14 to 20 years.

Broke Up Gang.
Martin was also active in breaking up a gang of six youthful holdup men in April, 1935.

Informing of his death, Martin's superior officers praised him highly. "It will be impossible to replace him," said Chief of Detectives A. Lamar Poole. "Martin was a gentleman in every way, and a very efficient and efficient investigator. His death is a great loss to the department."

Assistant Chief A. J. Holcomb said, "Martin was a man who was respected by his comrades as well as by his superior officers. He was an ace sleuth, conscientious and hard working and got results."

The team of Martin and Taylor became one of the most noted in the department. Martin was a Mason.

He is survived by his wife and a sister, Mrs. R. T. Hunt of Brownwood, Texas. He lived at 908 East Confederate avenue.

Funeral arrangements will be announced by J. Austin Dillon.

PATTERSON SEEKS FREEDOM ON WRIT
Man Out on Bond in Holdup Here, Battles Extradition.

Moving to forestall extradition to Alabama, counsel for Joseph W. Patterson, arrested in a downtown holdup Thursday night for an alleged holdup in Birmingham, obtained a writ of habeas corpus from Judge E. D. Thomas yesterday. Hearing on the writ was set for Tuesday.

In the meantime, officials of the United States secret service were investigating alleged counterfeiting equipment found in Patterson's room where he was arrested last week.

Patterson was out under $3,000 bond in connection with the daylight holdup here last December of a department store official at the time he was arrested for Birmingham.

Officers charged Patterson with taking $1,000 from Thomas Pearson in a Birmingham hotel last Monday. He is said by police to have admitted taking the $1,000, but said he got it in a poker game.

Swift Tyler Jr. is representing Patterson.

F.D.R. SUPPORTS DRIVE ON 'USELESS' AGENCIES

SENATE COMMITTEE HEAD SELECTS PROPOSED RUM BODY AS FIRST TARGET.

WASHINGTON, March 13.—(AP)—A proposed thirty-seventh new government agency was picked today by Senator Byrd, democrat, Virginia, as the first target of his drive against what he terms "useless" and "overlapping" federal bureaus.

Even as he eyed the proposed new independent alcohol control administration, the Virginia senator charted the course of his newly created committee set up by the senate to investigate government agencies and see which can be abolished.

He has proposed that J. R. McCarl, comptroller general, be named one of the outside experts to aid the committee. Another under consideration is Lewis Douglas, who resigned as President Roosevelt's budget director because of disagreement over spending policies.

Byrd conferred with the President today at the latter's invitation to discuss the committee's investigating plans. The senator said Mr. Roosevelt "indicated he was entirely sympathetic with the move."

Removal of the alcohol control administration from the treasury department of a new independent agency has been proposed in an amendment now before the senate finance committee of which Byrd is a member.

"I will fight this move to set up a new board of three, each with $10,000 a year salaries, in committee, and if I am not successful there the fight will be taken to the floor," Byrd said. "There apparently is no very good reason why alcohol control should not continue under the treasury department as it is at present."

Confers With Roosevelt.

The creation of a new independent agency would add new highly paid employees and increase the overhead cost of the government, Byrd said. "The creation of a new independent agency would add new highly paid employees and increase the overhead cost of the government, Byrd said."

Byrd said he considered his talk with the President a "go-ahead" signal for his committee, whose membership includes Majority leader Robinson, of Arkansas; Minority Leader McNary, of Oregon; and Senators O'Mahoney, democrat, Wyoming, and Townsend, republican, Delaware.

Committee members said no report would be made until after the November elections. It has been instructed to report to the senate by January 1 and present a governmental reorganization plan.

The amendment to make the alcohol control administration an independent agency generally is regarded in congressional circles to have New Deal support. A similar move was unsuccessful last year.

"Passage of the amendment would be directly across the purposes of our investigation," Byrd said, "and would create the thirty-seventh new agency within the government since 1933."

Radio Snoopers Find Superstition Is Not Atlanta's Ruling Passion

Atlantans are apparently not superstitious, as evidenced by a gathering which helped participate in the spontaneous conversations carried on by Frankie and Johnnie, the Sidewalk Snoopers, yesterday.

Friday, the thirteenth, held no jinks as bystanders broke mirrors, black cats, walked under a very dilapidated ladder, as a novel feature presented by these members of the WGST broadcasting staff.

Firemen Called To Aid In Arrest Of Suspect

A ladder truck of the Atlanta fire department was called in last night to aid police in capturing an alleged would-be burglar on the roof of the building at Marietta street, police records showed.

A filling station attendant next door to Sim's Five-and-Ten-Cent Store, 750 Marietta street, noticed two men mounding the roof by means of a tree and the drainpipe. He called police. Several radio cars nearby responded, but officers had to call the fire department to gain access to the roof.

One of the roof-climbing intruders escaped, but police arrested a man giving his name as William Meehan, 19, of Carl place address. He was booked on suspicion of burglary charges.

37 GEORGIA DEALERS ON SECURITIES ROSTER

Commission Lists Thousands Registered Under Exchange Act.

WASHINGTON, March 13.—(AP)—The Securities Commission today listed 37 Georgia securities dealers as among the several thousands who have registered under the securities exchange act.

Most of the dealers are registered in the state of New York. Registration is required if the dealer does business in interstate commerce or uses the mails or other instrumentalities of interstate commerce.

The commission warned registration was no indication one way or the other that the dealer has been approved by the commission—only that he is registered.

Registration has been denied some applicants who, the commission found, had criminal or other records. Some dealers probably have not registered either through ignorance of the law or because they believed they were exempt, it was pointed out.

ROOSEVELT PLEADED AT SEMINOLE RESULT

President Thanks Congressman Cox and Brother for Bringing Returns.

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS.
WASHINGTON, March 13.—President Roosevelt personally thanked Representative Eugene E. Cox, of Camilla, and his brother, Robin L. Cox, of Donaldsonville, for bringing to the White House late this afternoon official figures showing the chief executive's sweeping victory over Governor Talmadge in Seminole county's preferential primary of March 5.

Mr. Roosevelt chatted with Judge Cox and his brother for nearly half an hour late this afternoon in the executive offices, and through them thanked all his friends in Georgia for their loyal support.

Robin Cox, acting as personal representative of the Seminole county democratic committee, brought to the President the official returns from the primary which gave Mr. Roosevelt 601 votes and Governor Talmadge 120. He also presented to the President resolutions of the executive committee expressing the county's confidence in and loyalty to Mr. Roosevelt.

"I'm just reported to the President the feeling of the people of Seminole county," said Cox, who was introduced to Mr. Roosevelt by his brother, Representative E. E. Cox, of Georgia.

The report of the official ballot—the first cast in any county in the United States—was presented to President Roosevelt yesterday.

DRUG ADDICTS' FAKERY EXPOSED BY PHYSICIAN

act crazy but they don't go crazy and when they find they can't get their drugs, they stop.

"In all federal penal institutions, the same system is in vogue. I have never seen any ill results from depriving addicts of drugs. If results had been unfavorable, we would not have been allowed to continue this method."

The two government doctors occupied the witness stand throughout the day at Dr. Freeman's trial yesterday, as prosecuting attorneys sought to establish that the only effective cure for drug addiction is in either immediate deprivation or in supplying steadily diminishing doses until the habit is stopped quickly, and thoroughly.

Daily Prescriptions.
Dr. Freeman is charged with having issued prescriptions for morphine illegally. Several of his former patients have testified he has supplied them with prescriptions for five grains a day over periods of several months. Some have also testified that when he started to reduce their doses, they quit him.

Dr. Flynn also testified, in a careful thumbing through Leavenworth hospital records, stories of several of Dr. Freeman's patients who have admitted their craving for drugs but maintained they were suffering from chronic diseases and pains only morphine could alleviate.

R. T. Houseworth, who the day before had told the jury he had a fractured spine and wrenched muscles in the back, had been given thorough medical examinations at Leavenworth and neither of these conditions had been verified.

Regular Patient.
Houseworth had said he wrenched his back while working on the new postoffice building three or four years ago. He was a regular patient in the medical "lineup" at the prison hospital every morning, the doctor said, but these visits to the doctor were for colds, indigestion and headaches, principally.

Neither did the doctor verify L. P. Rigdon's statement that he suffered from asthma and bronchial trouble. "We found he had a chronic blood disease and he was a drug addict," said the doctor. "We gave him cold tablets once or twice, extracted his teeth, put him on a soft diet and gave him a cathartic."

A. A. Hammett's description of himself as a chronic sufferer from arthritis was also disputed by the doctor's records.

"He had influenza for five days and at another time he had a mild

SUIT FOR ROAD FUNDS IS HELD IN ABEYANCE

E. Pomeroy and Judge Virlyn B. Moore.

The certificates Lance holds are part of $2,600,000 due to be paid the counties on March 25. The highway department is to pay the counties $26,000,000 over a period of 10 years. When Governor Talmadge ousted George B. Hamilton as state treasurer he withdrew from Atlanta banks more than $5,000,000 in highway funds and is understood to have used some of that money to meet other expenses. However, he announced that the highway board would pay the certificate money to the counties, in advance of March 25 if the counties desired it. Some of the counties already have drawn their funds.

In announcing the withdrawal of his order on William and Daniel yesterday Judge Gaillard said that the suit still stood in Cobb county. The matter was before Judge Gaillard because of the illness of Judge J. H. Hawkins, of the Cobb superior court. The withdrawal order yesterday cancels a hearing on the matter which was to have been held in Gainesville today.

The litigation before the Fulton superior court involves pleas of the Atlanta banks which are holding more than $2,500,000 in state funds for an interpleader. Should this be granted the banks will have until May to file further pleadings. The court also has under advisement a summary proceeding seeking to force Hamilton to turn over his records to Daniel and a cross suit filed by Hamilton.

Capitol Quiet.
Meanwhile the situation at the capitol continued quiet. Employees are expected to be given their mid-month pay checks today out of funds on hand and in those banks which have recognized the Governor's set-up.

At American Senator Allen Chapman announced that he had received pledges from 33 members of the senate and from 150 members of the house promising that if they were quickly adopted an appropriation bill and would take up no other matters. This petition is to be presented to the Governor. However, it is generally understood that the Governor will continue to refuse to call a session. There are 51 members of the senate and 205 members of the house.

The petition circulated by Senator Chappell and by Senator J. M. Simmons, of Bainbridge, does not provide for a call of the assembly for impeachment purposes. It is doubtful if a majority of the senate could be gotten together for that purpose.

During the day the Governor made public a list of 35 banks which have recognized the present regime and which have been designated state depositories. All other banks which were state depositories before the Hamilton ouster have had their commissions cancelled.

Only two banks in the state are in the $100,000 class, which means that deposits up to $100,000 may be given them. They are the National City Bank of Rome, the first bank to recognize De Facto Treasurer Dan-

MANY STRANDED BY VOIDING OF AAA

Farm Scientists Have Not Been Paid Since Invalidated.
WASHINGTON, March 13.—(AP)—The story of how 25 Agriculture Department scientists were stranded in various parts of the world by the supreme court's invalidation of the AAA was unfolded today by Lee A. Strong, chief of the Bureau of Entomology and Plant Quarantine. Strong said surplus funds had been set aside from sugar processing taxes for scientific studies to aid the growth of sugar cane.

Scientists were sent to Puerto Rico, Hawaii, Africa and India. Those in India and Africa were hunting for some insect to be used to combat the Mediterranean fruit fly. The scientists in Puerto Rico and Hawaii were seeking to eliminate parasites affecting the plant in those areas.

Use of processing tax funds was halted on January 8 when the court handed down its ruling and since that date the scientists have received no salary or expense allowance.

Strong said, however, they have continued their work with relatively slight discomforts. Some of the scientists have been advanced travel expenses and others have had to make personal arrangements.

The deficiency appropriation bill passed recently contained an allocation of about $600,000 from which funds will be obtained for continuing scientific studies.

Strong said all of the men eventually will receive their full pay dating from January 6.

ers away from the union and back to their jobs as individuals.

Last Friday, the Prudence Company, Inc., owning 45 office buildings valued at $15,000,000, signed a separate agreement with the union, granted an $8 monthly wage increase and a "preferential" shop.

The advisory board said its offer to strikers had been successful and that "hundreds of strikers asked for their old jobs back. Most of them were allowed to return to work."

Under the Metropolitan agreement, Ferdinand A. Silcox, chief of the United States Forestry Service, will act as mediator of the union's demand for closed shop, 48-hour week, $8 raise and vacation periods.

The advisory board's new proposal embraces arbitration of all these points by Silcox who has been declared acceptable to both sides, but it maintains that the 15 per cent of "acceptable" replacement workers must be retained under the arbitration agreement.

This is a position which Banbrick has declared impossible, holding that "every man must go back to work" before he will submit to arbitration.

Meanwhile the voices of tenants became louder in the general clamor of statements and counter-statements.

A tenants committee representing apartments owned by the Sailors' Snug Harbor made a futile attempt today to serve upon the board of directors of the properties a letter protesting hiring men they called "strike-

Breckenridge Discounted.
Thus, in two widely separated sections of the country, the industrial east and the agricultural south, Mr. Roosevelt has faced his opposition and downed it.

Under the circumstances it is more doubtful than ever that Governor Talmadge will go forward with his grass roots revolt of so-called "Jeffersonian democrats." Whether he does or not doesn't seem to matter. Things are shaping up in such a way as to indicate that anti-Roosevelt forces will not be able to command sufficient strength to make even a demonstration in the Philadelphia convention hall.

KING'S PALACE READY FOR LEAGUE COUNCIL

Telephones, Telegraphs Set Up at St. James for Rhine Crisis Parley.

(Copyright, 1936, by North American Newspaper Alliance, Inc.)
LONDON, March 13.—(AP)—Expert workers have been laboring feverishly to transform St. James' palace into a miniature headquarters of the League of Nations in preparation for the opening session tomorrow morning of the League council.

Scores of officials, engineers and carpenters have been engaged for some days in preparing the great Queen Anne's drawing room and other state rooms of the palace for the occasion. Carpets have been laid, long conference tables have been carried in, section by section, and hundreds of yards of wiring for telephones and telegraphs have been installed.

In the drawing room itself, which will be the main conference room, the members of the League council will sit at a D-shaped table, while the experts and other delegates will sit immediately behind their representatives on the council.

Official press writers and about 50 reporters also will be in the main room.

Telephones Set Up.
The remainder of the representatives of the world press, who have crowded into London for the meeting, will be housed in the other rooms where tables have been provided for them.

The palace will be connected by telephone with 90 per cent of the world. A special branch exchange for the secretariat and reporters has been set up. There is a complete postoffice, 30 telephone booths and 15 other phones linked directly with newspaper and news agency offices. For the first time in the history of the palace, five telegraph-printers have been installed.

To one accustomed to the endless series of conferences of the last 15 years, there is an amusing innovation in the atmosphere of tomorrow's proceedings: a strange mixture of precaution and secrecy and of world-wide publicity. At any place other than the old building at the bottom of St. James' street which began life centuries ago as a hospital for lepers.

King Not Disturbed.
Detectives move discreetly through the crowds of men and women who have already gathered to record the meeting which it is hoped will preserve the peace of Europe. Presumably everyone entering the palace must be provided with an identity card, but some surprising congestion would result if this rule were strictly enforced.

That part of the palace devoted to the conference lies away from the modest quarters of the section called York house, occupied by King Edward. Two courtyards separate the Queen Anne's drawing room from the king's bedroom and so far as is known at present there will be no personal contact between the king and the delegates. There is no suggestion that the king's comfort will be in the slightest degree disturbed by the meeting. In all probability the king will leave London tomorrow, as usual, for Fort Belvedere and will not return until Monday.

LEAGUE SUPPORTERS SEEK TO INVOLVE U. S.
LONDON, March 13.—(AP)—League of Nations proponents launched a movement today to bolster collective security through the international body.

Invitations have been sent to many American organizations to join the campaign to educate people that the idea of the League covenant means collective security against war just as the covenant's corollary, the Kellogg pact, was negotiated to banish war.

The first of a series of meetings has been called at the home of Viscount Cecil in London. At the head of the movement is Edouard Genee, president of Czechoslovakia and head of the League of Nations assembly.

$24,486,925 INCREASE FOR ITALIAN NAVY

$135,246,088 Contemplated, But 'Uncertainties' Hinder Concrete Plans.

ROME, March 13.—(AP)—A report by the naval ministry to the chamber of deputies today showed that Italy will spend 1,608,801,000 lire (about $135,246,088) on the navy for the year 1936-1937.

This amount represents an increase of 305,000,000 lire (about $24,486,925) over the present budget. The report said that in the "uncertain" situation following the London naval conference, a clear, concrete and analytical naval program is still premature, adding that it was obvious only general directions could be indicated.

Beyond two 35,000-ton ships now being built, the report said that little of importance could be predicted beyond maintenance of the fleet's present strength.

A total of nearly 300,000 men, 30,000 animals, 6,500 auto vehicles and 3,000,000 tons of materials were shown to have been shipped to East Africa in the past year.

reason efforts now going on appear to be doubly dangerous and flippant—it is playing with fire.

The newspaper contended returning world recovery was abruptly ended by sanctions against Italy and there are statesmen who want to propose sanctions against Germany. . . . It sanctions against Italy have meant disruption of world economic relations, sanctions against Germany would be tantamount to their complete destruction.

"Even after a sharp climb in our foreign trade, we have in 1935 still participated to the extent of 10 per cent in the turnover of the world's trade. We have bought from the world foodstuffs worth 1,500,000,000 marks, industrial and raw materials for about the same amount, besides that in half-finished goods to the tune of 250,000,000 marks.

"Hence our role as customer in the world's trade is at least three-fold that of Italy."

RED TROOP ACCORD BARED IN RUMANIA

BUCHAREST, Rumania, March 13.—(AP)—George Bratianu, liberal leader, told the Rumanian parliament today that the Rumanian government had received instructions to be in readiness to rush soviet troops across the country.

Supporters of the government denied the existence of such orders.

PROBE FUND VOTED

Townsend Investigating Body Gets $50,000.

WASHINGTON, March 13.—(AP)—The special bi-partisan committee investigating the Townsend and other old-age pension plans was given $50,000 expenses by the house today over protests that the amount was "grossly excessive" and was like "stuffing $50,000 down a rat hole."

There was no record vote on adoption of the expense resolution. A roll call vote on the question of whether amendments should be allowed—tantamount to passage—was 243 against and 113 for.

Chairman Bell, democrat, Missouri, of the investigating committee, defended the request for $50,000 and declared the Townsend organization constituted "the most far-flung political movement ever on the stage of American politics."

Representative Monaghan, democrat, Montana, chairman of the house Townsend steering committee, attempted to block consideration of the resolution on points of order. He was overruled by Speaker Byrne after the Montanaer tried repeatedly to open up the entire question of the resolution. Monaghan contended the house could not act intelligently without the facts and background.

BRITAIN WINS DELAY IN SANCTIONS ACTION

ately "no substantial progress has been made."

It was emphasized nothing can be done until Italy fully refuses to see whether Adolf Hitler will make a gesture of conciliation or continue deaf to British appeals for one.

The Rhineland problem will pass from the hands of the Locarno powers—Britain, France, Belgium and Italy—tomorrow and be merged into a general international problem when the council of the League of Nations meets here to take up Franco-British appeals against Germany's scrapping of the Locarno pact.

Day's developments were:

1. The statement of a high authority that Italy fully refused to see whether Adolf Hitler will make a gesture of conciliation or continue deaf to British appeals for one.

2. The British foreign office announced: "The door is still open for Germany to make any kind of offer it wishes."

3. Soviet Russia pledged France its backing, both military and economic, for punishment of Germany with sanctions.

4. Dr. Leopold von Hoesch, the German ambassador to London, went to the British foreign office to confer with legal experts on what were smilingly described as "minor matters."

League officials expressed unofficially the view that a solution of the crisis really would be found, but admitted it would in no wise curb Europe's present tendency to arm to the teeth.

The council's plan for tomorrow is for the French and Belgian spokesmen, Foreign Minister Pierre-Etienne Flandin and Premier Paul Van Zeeland, to state their cases on the Rhineland violation of Locarno.

Adjournment Until Monday.
The council plan to adjourn until Monday to give time for reflection and further negotiations, perhaps to give time for a new peace contribution from Hitler.

League officials expressed belief the passing of the problem from Locarno to the League hands will have a somewhat calming effect on the situation, as states not directly affected or remote from the scene of the quarrel, are likely to contribute materially to conciliation.

Latin-American members were said particularly to be influenced by Germany's promise to accept the League, thereby becoming pledged to obey international rules of the League and to refrain from overt aggression and the risk of being punished like Italy.

League officials said France's dogged belief in the effectiveness of the League security as represented by the League prevented quick action on military action in the Rhineland as soon as Hitler's troops marched.

Action by France.
The first French plan was for immediate single-handed action by marching into the demilitarized zone, it was said. Advocates of this drastic plan were overruled by the government who insisted upon giving collective security its chance.

A communique issued after today's Locarno meeting said: "The government of ministers representing the signatory powers of the Locarno treaty continued during the day its examination of the situation."

"As the discussion proceeded, it was noted with satisfaction that a closer approximation of views had become apparent."

The next meeting of the committee will take place at 5 p. m. tomorrow. Italy was said to feel that since Britain, with the consent of France, led in application of sanctions against Germany because of the African war, "no British or French statesman can now go to Italy and ask the Italian people to fight for them in any eventuality whatsoever."

Presbyterian Moderator Addresses Mass Meeting at Covenant Church.

Dr. Joseph A. Vance, of Detroit, moderator of the Presbyterian general assembly, U. S. A., addressed a mass meeting of the Atlanta members of the denomination at the Covenant Presbyterian church last night.

Dr. J. Spore Lyons, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, and a former moderator of the general assembly, introduced Dr. Vance. Dr. Herman L. Turner, pastor of the Covenant church, presided. The address followed a banquet given in the moderator's honor.

World trends that are affecting the church and how clergymen are facing them were outlined by Dr. Vance at a luncheon meeting of the Presbyterian Ministers' Association at noon yesterday. The Rev. Peter Marshall, pastor of the Westminster Presbyterian church, presided.

Dr. Vance will leave today for St. Augustine, Fla., where tomorrow he will address members of the denomination in that city. From there he will sail for the West Indies, in behalf of Presbyterian mission work.

AX BLOW IS FATAL

Penitentiary Guard Found in Flame-Seared Car.

COLUMBIA, S. C., March 13.—(AP) A theory that Joe Byrd, 40-year-old penitentiary guard, was felled with an ax by a vengeful ex-convict was evolved today by officials after finding Byrd's burned body in the flame-seared wreck of his automobile.

Coroner J. A. Sargeant, of Richmond county, reported that Byrd had been taken to the hospital, but fractured the left side of his skull, apparently before his body was tossed on the back seat and the car ignited.

A guard corporal, a powerfully built man in his prime, disappeared after leaving his home before dawn yesterday in his car to report for duty at the penitentiary.

State and county officials working on the case announced the theory that a former prisoner might have secreted himself on the back seat of the car and, in his madness and struck Byrd over the head.

PRISONER IS TAKEN

Georgia Sheriff Yields Negro Near Columbus.

COLUMBIA, Ga., March 13.—(AP) A man identifying himself as Sheriff Van Horn, of Chattahoochee county, called police headquarters here late tonight to report a negro prisoner had been taken from his custody while he was en route from Macon to Columbus.

Deak Sergeant H. T. Whitley said the clerk reported he was stopped by two men and told to get into a car. The men took him to a house in Junction City, about 25 miles east of here. a means of breaking the Franco-German deadlock.

After an hour's talk between them, the French ambassador, M. Legat, permanent secretary of the foreign office, and told him to submit the suggestions to the delegation at the Locarno (allies) conference.

The nature of the suggestions was not disclosed, although in some quarters it was said Herriot cautioned a "more realistic stand" instead of holding out stubbornly for a full Nazi evacuation of the Rhineland.

"We must see clearly the difference between firmness and imprudence," said the veteran Herriot on leaving the meeting.

The uncertainty of British aid, as demonstrated during the past week, was cited today by Francois Pietri, minister of the navy, as a warning that France must have a more powerful fleet.

He made this statement before the senate naval committee in urging that legislation building up the nation's sea power be passed immediately.

Conscription Terms Increased.
The senate without ado approved a bill from the chamber of deputies increasing the period of conscript military service from one year to two years.

Conscripts already have begun serving two years under a governmental decree. The increase in time was needed, among other things, because of the "lean years" of war babies—youths born during the World War days are now serving.

General Louis Felix Maurin, minister of war, told the senate "the government has decided to extend the term of military service."

Not an admission of weakness but a measure of precaution and sincerity. Small squads of radio specialists and experts to handle sound detectors were sent to the frontier to complete the organization of the anti-war raids service.

of the new federal building and inundated railroad yards.

Between 20 and 30 tugs and barges, a 100-foot excursion yacht were fast in an ice jam at Kingston after being torn from their moorings and swept a mile and a half down river.

Quebec, Mrs. Henry Duple and her three small children were drowned when their home was demolished by ice and water from an overflowing brook.

13 PERSONS PERISH IN CANADIAN FLOODS

TORONTO, March 13.—(AP)—Eastern Canada counted a two-day flood death toll of 13 tonight.

Eleven died in Quebec, one in Ontario and one in Nova Scotia.

Five young children were drowned tonight at La Martine when Elzeur Duteau's home was swept away by the Little St. Francis river.

Duteau's wife and their ten children were caught in their home at the foot of a hill when water and snow rushed down the slope. The parents and five children struggled to safety but the others were trapped.

TWO FACE CHARGES IN DOHERTY HIDING

Sheriff Declares Hotel Employees Blocked Serving of Suit.

MIAMI, Fla., March 13.—(AP)—Two Miami, Fla., hotel employees allegedly leading Sheriff D. C. Coleman to a fire escape after he deputized them and ordered them to carry him to the rooming house of Doherty, led to their being charged today with contempt of court.

The employees, Milton Chapman, hotel manager, and George Campbell, house detective, will answer the charges tomorrow before Circuit Judge W. W. Trammell.

Coleman, in an affidavit filed in court today, said the two men carried him to a locked screen door on the tenth floor of the hotel and told him to let the oil man L. Doherty in. Instead, the sheriff said, it led to a fire escape.

erable shadow upon congressional hopes for a May 1 adjournment.

Speaker Byrnes, after a White House visit, today reiterated his prediction that the end of April would find congress homeward-bound.

At the same time, however, there have been a number of predictions that another 10 days might elapse before the house subcommittee is ready to turn a completed tax bill over to the full committee.

In addition, there has been talk of two weeks of open hearings before the full committee, which with time allowed for revision and the necessity of obtaining a majority to bring the bill to the house floor, might place the opening debate a month away.

Despite the hurdle passed today, not even tentative decision has yet been reached in the house subcommittee as to whether banks, insurance companies and other corporations should be exempted from the corporate tax.

Representative Vinson, democrat, Kentucky, said, however, that it "wouldn't be a very appreciable effort" whether they are in or out, so far as revenue is concerned.

Neither had the subcommittee reached a conclusion on how to treat evasion of income taxes on dividends by foreigners owning stock in United States corporations.

That was only one of a number of possible loopholes which the subcommittee may have to fashion plugs. Asked whether the treasury had approved the new schedule, Hill said:

"We're doing this job, you know."

Experts at Meeting.
Treasury experts sat in on the discussion at which the tentative agreement was reached.

Vinson explained that under the new table, the 15 per cent tax on 10 per cent of undistributed profits in a corporation's total net income.

The effective rate, taking gradations into account, would move up to 22.5 per cent on 20 per cent of undistributed net earnings. This, however, he said, would be only 4.5 per cent on total net earnings.

Active rate of 40 per cent of undistributed net profits he continued, would amount to only 14.5 per cent on total net income.

Since corporations now pay an average tax of about 16.4 per cent on their net earnings, Vinson said that under the new plan they could put 40 per cent of their net earnings into reserves and still pay smaller taxes than they do under existing law.

Thus a corporation with a net income of $100,000 would pay $16,400 in taxes now in effect. Under the schedule adopted tentatively today, Vinson said, this corporation could put 40 per cent of its earnings into reserves, distribute the rest in dividends to stockholders, and still pay only $14,500 in taxes.

DR. RUXTON MUST DIE FOR SLAYING OF WIFE

English Jury Takes Only 62 Minutes To Decide on Guilt.

MANCHESTER, England, March 13.—(AP)—Traditionally swift British justice tonight sentenced Dr. Buck Ruxton to pay with his life for the "devil's beefsteak" murder of his wife.

Sixty-two minutes after receiving the case, a jury of farmers and town-folk convicted the Indian-blooded physician. Presiding Judge Singleton immediately sentenced him to be hanged.

Mumbling incoherently the doctor was led away to his cell. His behavior strangely contrasted to the emotional outbursts he had exhibited on the witness stand.

From the first he had denied he had, as the crown charged, throttled his wife, cut up her body and tossed the mutilated parts into a lonely ravine called the "Devil's bathub." His denial was equally strong to the prosecution charge he had bludgeoned a nursemaid, Mary Jane Rogerson, to death.

Only One Sentence.
The law knows but one sentence for the terrible crime you have committed," the judge told the white-faced prisoner before the bar. Earlier, in his instructions to the jury, Justice Singleton had declared the crown had built up the strongest possible case on circumstantial evidence.

Still unsolved as the case was brought to a final close was the mystery of an eye found among the mutilated remains in the lonely ravine near the Scottish border. One witness had declared "it might be a pig's eye" but the question was never answered.

The jinx of the "thirteenth" followed Ruxton to the end of the trial. He was arrested for the murder on September 10, 1935, after charwomen had found clothes, carpets and curtains in his home spattered with blood. There the crown alleged, he killed the two women, cut up their bodies, and attempted to remove all traces of the killings.

Blood from "Own Veins."
The blood, the physician testified between fits of sobbing, had come from his own veins when he cut his hand opening a can of fruit.

On December 13, the doctor, father of three young children, was committed for trial. Today, Agat the thirteenth, he heard his fate pronounced by the black-robed judges.

The physician's attorneys said they were "considering" an appeal but had not decided on their future action. Ruxton, an associate of Norman Birkett, famous British trial lawyer.

Beware The Cough
From a common cold
That Hangs On

No matter how many medicines you have tried for your cough, chest cold or bronchial irritation, you can get relief now with Creomulsion. Creomulsion not only contains the soothing elements common to many remedies, such as Syrup of Marshmallows, but it also contains the active ingredients of Wild Cherry and Menthol, but also has fluid extract of Pecan for its powerful phlegm loosening effect, fluid extract of Cascara for its mild laxative effect and, most important of all, Beechwood Creosote is perfectly blended with all of these to reach the source of the trouble from the inside. Creomulsion can be taken frequently and continuously by adults and children without harm. One bottle will soothe the inflamed membranes and heal the irritated tissues as the germ-laden phlegm is loosened and expelled. Creomulsion also knows the effectiveness of Beechwood Creosote for coughs because you get a real dose of Creosote in Creomulsion, emulsified so that it is palatable, digestible and potent for good to the very seat of the trouble. Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of coughs, chest colds and bronchial irritations and especially those stubborn ones that start with a common cold and hang on for dreadful days and nights thereafter. Even if other remedies have failed, your Creomulsion is authorized to guarantee Creomulsion to refund every cent of your money if you are not satisfied with results from the very first bottle. Don't worry through another sleepless night—phone or go get a bottle of Creomulsion right now. (Adv.)

Kelly took him to the hospital where he was placed against the wall of the hospital. He was made a full report of the accident to Patrolman W. L. Owen. A technical charge of reckless driving was placed against the driver. He was released on his own recognizance.

SPECIAL SQUAD By Courtney Ryley Cooper

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE. Inspector Ross, of the Department of Justice, and Special Agent Buck Wasey motor from Reno to Victor City in search of information on a notorious criminal, Social Joe, who is wanted by the Federal Bureau of Investigation. Social Joe is a notorious criminal, who has been in the news for some time. He is a man of many names, and he is a man of many faces. He is a man of many talents, and he is a man of many tricks. He is a man of many secrets, and he is a man of many lies. He is a man of many sins, and he is a man of many crimes. He is a man of many names, and he is a man of many faces. He is a man of many talents, and he is a man of many tricks. He is a man of many secrets, and he is a man of many lies. He is a man of many sins, and he is a man of many crimes.

INSTALLMENT XII.

"Airport know we're coming?" Buck inquired, squeezing into a seat.

"I telephoned them—they'll be ready," Sandy Ross had taken the wheel, glanced over a shoulder to be sure that the other car was ready to follow, and meshed the gears. The trip over the grade began—a cautiously wild affair, in which corners were rounded to the incessant blowing of horns, dips encompassed without the precaution of going into gear, hills attacked without regard to the danger of boiling radiators. At last the crest was passed, the downgrade accomplished and the main road reached.

Now the machines began to thum with the 85-mile-an-hour speed which any automobile manufacturer must guarantee when a car is sold to the F. B. I. Within a space of minutes they were whirling through Reno and on to the airport. There, the airplane, both pilots in the turret, awaited with cocked wheels and idling propellers.

The automobiles were left for remaining agents to park as the federal men leaped forth, each concentrated upon trim but excessively heavy black leather cases which they, one by one, deposited carefully in the mail compartment. Personal effects were only so much clothing; these long, black cases were the protection of their lives; hundred-shot machine guns, with every fourth bullet a red tracer; tear gas bombs, and the big barreled weapons by which to shoot them; heavy Monitor rifles, the high velocity bullets of which no steel vest could withstand, flares for night fighting, automatic shotguns. Doors were closed and locked. Men took their places and reached for the safety straps.

"Give her the gun—all of it!" Sandy Ross shouted through the open door of the turret. Blocks were removed; with brakes already tested, the big silver gray machine roared into the mountains for its takeoff. After that came thunderous monotony.

Mountains jutted up at them as the plane, skimming swiftly in a high climb, shot onward toward Salt Lake. The craggy peaks of Pyramid Lake showed for a few moments, gleamed beneath them, then gave way to great wastes of alkali before the earth burst upward into new serrations of mountains. An hour became two, while the plane rose to ride high above fringes of clouds and finally lost the earth altogether beneath a tumbled mass of steamy white. The copilot eased out of his seat and into the cabin.

"Looks like we might have some weather out of Salt Lake," he announced to Sandy.

"How is it beyond?"

"Don't know," he answered. "The only government reports we can get, come from as far south as Denver. Down Gunnison way, we've got to take what we get and like it."

He returned to his task. Sandy Ross heard him talking on the wireless telephone; soon the altitude began to lessen. For a time the inspector watched the phenomenon of rain which gave but little evidence of its presence; clear enough at the wing ends, but so dissipated by the propellers that only creeping lines of misty moisture showed along the motor casings, and tiny streaks against the windows. Soon, however, the ship began to bank slowly, cutting through the clouds now to reveal a drenched airfield, and the glowering uplift of the Wasatch range beyond Salt Lake City.

Once the landing had been made the federal men waited in their seats, listening to the drum of water upon metal while the fuel wagon made its hasty run to the ship, filled the tanks anew and hurried away. Electric starters whined complainingly, engines coughed, then settled into steady thrumming. Again blocks were pulled away; in a streaming swirl of dirty water, the plane crossed the field, lifted itself loggily against the heavy atmosphere and away, away, away, swinging in wide circles as it strove for altitude against the crossing of the range.

Men were tense now—once over the Wasatch, all factors of commercial safety must vanish. There would be no radio beams to offer direction, no beacons, flying must revert to 10 years to an uncharted course above vicious peaks, and direction must come by maps and reckoning. The ship drove on.

"Pretty tough going," Sandy had cupped his hands and shouted across the aisle to Wasey, lurching against his safety belt as the ship bucked the treacherous air currents. The Texan rounded his eyes.

"Wish I was on a boss!" he shouted in reply. Then there was silence again. The thrumming ship felt its way over misty mountains southward, toward Grand Junction, before turning east again in its search for the headquarters of the Taylor and the descent into the Gunnison valley. The trip was ages long; at last the rain ceased, and eyes became brighter with moonlight, however. To the right, to the left and beyond lay heavy butresses of blue black which weighted the sky—suddenly Sandy Ross unfurled his seat belt and staggered into the breaking of clouds. It was only the turret.

"What do you think of it?" he shouted, leaning close to the pilot's shoulder. The answer was that inscrutable grin with which airmen have come to welcome the unknown.

"Can't tell," came crisply. "This is cloudburst weather. Got to play tag with those storms."

More ages passed, through rain and out of it again into the gleam of Colorado sunshine, made all the brighter by the lowering black of our surrounding skies. The afternoon grew deeper. Likewise, the clouds massed heavier; once in a streak of high ceiling, Sandy counted down the clouds pouring their heavy loads of moisture upon patches of mountains.

"Like shaking dice," he shouted to Buck Wasey, who was talking to each other, craning their necks, pointing. At last, ground skimmed beneath the plane, there was a series of terrific bumps and bounces and the ship stopped. Sandy Ross did not hesitate to learn whether they had alighted upon a makeshift landing field or upon a stretch of mountain meadow. He was out of his seat, and at the door, waiting for it to be opened. With the flash of daylight, he leaped to the ground, grabbing his hat against the rush of wind from the propellers, still rotating. He faced a raw-boned man whose many wrinkles were shadowed by a five-gallon hat.

"Sheriff?" he asked.

"Yes," they shook hands without asking names. "There's my car if you want to lead your men into it. Got another coming—there it is, now, just rounding in. Where to first?"

Sandy Ross liked this kind of an offer.

"Tell me what's happened. Where are they?"

"They're the sheriff's men. I don't know where they are, but they're coming. No, just a girl. There was a man but he's either hidden or he's left town."

Sandy Ross bit his lips. Looking around about him, he noticed for the first time that the ground was dry—storms had as yet not touched this place. One glance at the sky, however, told him it would not be long.

SALLY'S SALLIES

WHERE IS THE MONEY COMIN' FROM TO PAY ALL THESE BILLS?!

No one has ever seen the planet Venus. Venus is one of the most important planets, named for the goddess of love, and is about the same size as our earth. It was originally called Lucifer by the ancients as a morning star. Its period of rotation is about 225 days, and it moves in an orbit between that of Mercury and that of the earth.

UNCLE RAY'S CORNER

A LITTLE SATURDAY TALK.

After I finished writing the series on "Highlights of Hollywood," my thoughts turned back to the "extras"—the persons who number thousands as compared with the dozens or scores who rank as "stars." They usually earn from $3.50 to $7.50 per day, though some of the more famous extras or evening gowns make more. They sit or stand around all through the day without speaking a word while sound is being recorded. Now and then a few hundreds of them may take part in "mob scene."

I chatted with one of the extras, who was on duty that day but who was free for the moment. "I wish I had a single word to speak," he said, "for then I'd be paid a lot more."

The number who can have speaking parts in a picture is not very large, and in fact should make people careful about "taking a chance and going to Hollywood." Where one succeeds in rising from the ranks of the extras, hundreds fail. A girl who is goodlooking or even beautiful may come close to starving when she joins the throngs of extras.

Those extras could get along fairly well if they had steady work, but the work is not steady. It comes and it goes. An extra who can average $10 a week is having good fortune—many average much less.

Another thought which has come to me is about the place of moving pictures in the lives which all of us are leading. If pictures are good, they help us. If they are bad, they hurt us.

Not so many worthless films are being made today as was the case a few years ago, but even so there is much left to be done. Motion pictures were made possible by men who worked hard to invent machines and films to make them. Often the inventors labored with little or no reward in honor or money, but they gave the human race a great gift.

It is for us to learn to make better use of that gift. Motion pictures can become of more and more value to us all. They can bring us facts and scenes of history, science and travel. To a certain extent, this has been done—but not nearly to the extent it can be done.

Perhaps some of the boys and girls who read these words will take part, later in their lives, in building a greater and finer motion picture industry. There is reason to be proud of some of the films which today come out of Hollywood and other centers, but there is room—much room—to improve.

COTTON SEED SEIZED IN FIGHT ON PINK BOLL

State, Federal Officials Co-operate in Preventing Infestation in Georgia.

Manning S. Yeomans, state entomologist, said yesterday his department has avoided the possibility of establishing an infestation of the pink boll worm in Georgia by intercepting cottonseed moving from an infested area in Florida.

Yeomans said the pink boll worm is the most destructive insect known to attack cotton.

The entomologist revealed that his department, working with inspectors of the United States Bureau of Entomology and Plant Quarantine, had taken possession of 2,000 pounds of cottonseed moving from Madison county, Florida, into Appling county, Georgia.

Madison county, he said, is in the regulated area and included in the federal pink boll worm quarantine on account of the presence of the disease.

Another lot of the seed moving from the same Florida locality into Brooks county, Georgia, also was seized and returned, Yeomans said. "Inspectors of both the state and federal governments," he declared, "are now making a very extensive check of the movement of cottonseed from the regulated area in Florida and all infested seed found is being returned."

"From past experience, new infestations have been most generally established through the movement of infested cottonseed."

Yeomans revealed that a small infestation of the pink worm was found in Berrien county, Georgia, in the early fall of 1933. He said with excellent co-operation from the farmers in the area and federal officials the infestation was eradicated and the federal quarantine against this infested section of the state was removed last November.

MRS. FRED J. ALLEN DIES AT RESIDENCE

Wife of Late Former Mayor of East Point Passes.

Mrs. Fred J. Allen, wife of the late former mayor and postmaster of East Point and a resident of that community for more than 50 years, died yesterday morning at her residence, 316 East Point street.

Mrs. Allen was 80 years of age and a member of a pioneer South Carolina family. She was a daughter of the late Judge J. J. Martin, of East Point, who served as auditor in the United States Treasury Department during the administration of President Grant.

A native of Augusta, Mrs. Allen lived for many years in Montgomery and Washington. She was active in affairs of the First Presbyterian Church of Atlanta and was one of that church's oldest members.

She was a member of the East Point Woman's Club and prominent in social circles in East Point and Atlanta.

A daughter, Miss Carrie May Allen, a son, F. D. Allen, two grandchildren, Ann Caroline and P. D. Allen Jr.; two brothers, John J. Martin, of Atlanta, and S. S. Martin, of College Park, and a sister, Mrs. H. K. Sturdivant, of College Park, survive.

Funeral services will be held at 3 o'clock this afternoon at the residence, with the Rev. Dr. J. Sproule Lyons officiating. Burial will be in Oakland cemetery under the direction of Howard L. Carmichael.

PATROLMEN DETAILED TO STRENGTHEN WATCH

A special order issued yesterday by Chief T. O. Sturdivant detailed eight men to duty on the morning watch, which has been extended recently, according to the chief.

The patrolmen are S. R. Allen, T. B. Clark and W. H. Pope, who were appointed to the force Thursday, and J. H. Evans, J. D. Adams, S. C. Banks, E. T. Payne and R. V. Paschal.

Patrolman W. L. Jay was transferred to the motorcycle squad, and Patrolman J. A. Allen was assigned to the traffic squad.

"The morning watch has been shortened and I am putting the youngest and most active men on that shift," said Chief Sturdivant, "as it is only fair to give older men the more desirable day and evening watches."

The morning watch is from midnight until 8 o'clock in the morning.

1,800 ATTEND SESSION OF EDUCATION GROUP

Willis Sutton To Open Morning Meeting at Biltmore Today.

Dr. Caroline Zachry, of New York city, noted author of books on the development of school children, will address the southeastern regional conference of the Progressive Education Association, at its session in the Biltmore hotel this morning, on "Helping Youth to Come of Age."

Dr. Zachry was one of the keynote speakers at the sessions yesterday, which attracted approximately 1,800 leading educators, parents and school administrators for a thoughtful consideration of the emotional, intellectual and physical development of the child as a basis for education.

This morning's meeting will begin at 9:30 o'clock and will be opened by Dr. Willis A. Sutton, superintendent of city schools. Sectional meetings on various phases of education will begin at 10:45 o'clock, the one especially aimed at parents, according to officials, having the theme, "Intellectual and Esthetic Maturity Through a Liberal Arts Education."

An unexpected visitor to the conference last night was Dr. John Dewey, distinguished educational philosopher and author of Columbia University, who addressed the group on social sciences at a dinner-meeting last night.

Other keynote speakers at the meetings yesterday included Dr. Lois Hayden Meek, of the Child Development Institute of New York city; Dr. William Kiser Jr., of Atlanta; Dr. John A. Rice of Black Mountain College; Dr. Homer P. Rainey, director of the American Youth Commission, and Dr. Harold Rugg, of the Teachers' College of New York city.

Many teachers of this country are static, literal-minded and too dependent upon rote memory, Dr. Meek declared. She urged teachers to develop a "creative life," so they could better develop the creative imaginations of children. She declared "the very hope of society lies in the sensitivity of children in our schools today."

Educators are trying to take the things they already know about the education of the individual and apply them to the college level, Dr. Rice pointed out. He predicted that colleges generally will "adopt the idea."

Colleges Too Large. He declared most colleges are too large. For individual education, he said, a small unit is necessary.

At a meeting at the St. Mark Methodist church last night Dr. Rainey outlined the needs of American youth. Dr. Rugg discussed the needs of a changing, dynamic America.

Taking up the problems of teaching in the new elementary schools at one of the sectional meetings this morning, Dr. Laura Zirbes, of Ohio State University, will discuss curriculum trends.

Dr. Cox To Preside.

Dr. Harvey W. Cox, president of Emory University, will preside at the meeting for consideration of intellectual and esthetic maturity through a liberal arts education. Speakers will include W. R. Wunsch, of Black

CONVENTION SYSTEM HELD UNFAIR TO SOUTH

New Rule of Delegate Apportionment Needed, According to Graves.

That the south should use the two-thirds rule in democratic conventions from which it derives occasional advantage, as an ace with which to trade for a new system of apportionment of delegates to the convention, is the opinion of John Temple Graves II, famous southern editor and special writer. The present method of apportionment does tremendous injustice to the south, Graves asserts, for it gives a state two delegates for each representative in congress, and takes no notice of the number of delegates who live in the state. Thus, in the democratic convention, Pennsylvania, a stronghold of the republicans, can outvote the states of Alabama, Georgia, and South Carolina combined with ten votes to spare.

"Even though the two-thirds rule is bad in principle and variable in practice, it is looked upon as a southern advantage, and as such it should be cherished at Philadelphia for the bargaining power it gives this section in attempts to change the apportionment system," says Graves, writing in The South Today, next Sunday in The Constitution, "for there is little likelihood for reapportionment for democratic national conventions unless those whose unfair portion gives them a controlling power can be bargained out of it."

John Temple Graves has watched politics from the sidelines almost since his birth. His father was one of the most distinguished of southern editors, and he has been editor of three southern papers. He was with the American peace conference in Paris, and was economist for the federal trade commission in Washington, where he was admitted to the bar of the District of Columbia. His article in The South Today in Sunday's Constitution, reflects these years of political study and observation.

TO BAR ALIEN LABORERS.

DENVER, March 13.—(AP)—Governor Ed C. Johnson threatened today to summon national gardeners to halt importation of sugar beet field laborers into Colorado this spring. Governor Johnson charged State WPA Director Paul D. Shriver had "given preference to alien and denied work to deserving destitute American citizens."

Mountain College: T. W. Surrette, of Boston, and Hilda Tab, of New York city. Discussion will center around the potentialities of music, literature and the social sciences as developers of intellectual maturity.

Miss Kathleen Mitchell will preside at the session with the theme, "The New School for Rural Children."

Individual development and the next steps in education will be the topic for six ten-minute addresses at the final general session at 6 o'clock this afternoon. Speakers will be Dr. Meek, Dr. Zirbes, Dr. Zachry, Dr. Rugg, Dr. Rudolph Lindquist and Dr. John Rice.

Dr. J. Sproule Lyons To Retire; Plans To Continue Church Work

Dr. J. Sproule Lyons, for more than 21 years pastor of the First Presbyterian church and one of the most prominent ministers in the south, formally announced his retirement from the active pulpit yesterday afternoon. He will make formal announcement before his congregation tomorrow morning.

His written resignation has been placed in the hands of church officers and the congregation will act on it the following Sunday.

Dr. Lyons declared that his retirement was for his health but is in an effort to prolong his usefulness in ministerial work by lessening the burden of constant activity.

To Prolong Service. "My resignation is a precaution against weariness," he said, "I have declared yesterday, 'I believe my service to the church and its people can be increased and prolonged by taking my best years, which I have 15 years of continued work naturally have their effect on a person's constitution and I believe I am acting wisely in making this decision.'"

It was learned yesterday that a number of his friends in the church have been asked to take his place for emeritus when they found that he intended resigning from active pulpit work.

In his leadership, the First Presbyterian church grew from a small band of worshippers to the large structure at Peachtree and Sixteenth streets.

Came Here in 1914. Dr. Lyons came to Atlanta in 1914 to take charge of the congregation, then housed in a small frame building on Marietta street on the present site of the Federal Reserve bank.

Friday, the Thirteenth, Be Durned; Monday, the Sixteenth, Is Tax Day

Now that Friday the thirteenth is out of the way, real estate brokers and government makes no extensions. March 16 is the deadline and that's that.

Equally grimly, Paul H. Doyal, chairman of the state revenue commission, announced that Monday, March 16, is the last day.

Doyal also announced that all federal and state taxes or wages are sufficient must make income tax returns to the state because "the theory seems to be that the state is entitled to a complete disclosure of income so as to be able to determine what is or is not taxable."

The public is also warned by both Collector Page and Chairman Doyal that "the penalty for failure to file on time is a fine of $100."

So if you haven't paid your taxes or filed your returns, just get a line at the old postoffice building or the state capital before Monday night or at the city hall before next Saturday noon.

Wherever you see a line of solemn-looking citizens, it's a tax line. Fall in!

JURY MAPS PROBE OF POLICE AFFAIRS

Subcommittee for Routine Investigation To Be Selected Next Tuesday.

The Fulton grand jury, busy yesterday with accumulated routine business, will convene Tuesday to select a subcommittee to investigate all police affairs and the city police department, Foreman R. A. Agnew announced yesterday.

Probe of the police department will be routine unless specific charges are laid against officials, the foreman indicated.

The March-April grand jury is required by law to investigate all phases of county affairs and was so charged by Judge E. D. Thomas in Fulton superior court.

No witnesses have yet been called before the jury in relation to the county government. But the jurors have discussed methods and plans for conducting the semi-annual probe, it was understood.

Twenty-five true bills and one no bill were returned by the jury yesterday.

E. C. Cone, white, was indicted for larceny after trust, it being alleged he converted to his own use $1,071 in cash which belonged to the King Hardware Company. The date of the larceny was set as February 24.

F. G. Akin, whose automobile ran over C. A. Brooks on December 24 at Lucile avenue and Langhorn street, was named in a true bill charging involuntary manslaughter.

Nick Verginadis and Tom Poulas were indicted for receiving stolen goods. They were accused in a true bill with buying articles of small value from Aubrey Wallace, who was convicted recently of breaking into a freight car and stealing.

Other true bills were of minor interest.

JUDGE IS UNMOVED BY LEE ELOQUENCE

Court Rules Erstwhile Bond, Share Attorney Must Face Trial.

All those words that Robert S. Lee, the talkative "Earl of Pelham," fired at Judge E. Marvin Underwood in United States district court last week, just went to waste.

Lee was trying to talk the judge into quashing indictments and tossing out evidence, but the judge's ruling yesterday was that Lee will have to face trial next Friday, March 20, just as though he hadn't talked at all.

Lee will be tried along with John C. Ingram and William A. Smith, on charges of mail fraud and violations of the national securities law. Lee is an attorney, the bank of American Bond & Share Corporation; Ingram was its secretary-treasurer and Smith its sales manager.

No one knows where Lee is today. He vanished after a two-day argument before Judge Underwood last week. He put everything he had into his argument, at times, by orations before the solitary judge matched the spectacular qualities of Hitler's addresses to his usual audience of 500,000 storm troopers.

Municipal court process servers were waiting to serve Lee with a bail order, asking him to explain the disappearance of some furniture he is accused of holding illegally. Lee evaded the process servers and disappeared. He is under $15,000 bond to appear next Friday.

"FLU" CLOSES SCHOOLS.

VICKSBURG, Miss., March 13.—(AP)—White and negro schools were closed here today as a result of what H. V. Cooper, city superintendent of schools, said was an influenza epidemic.

5-YEAR TERM IS METED TO DAPPER SALESMAN

Alan Hoyt, Bad Check Passenger, Stole Automobile From Sweetheart.

A total of five years imprisonment was meted out to Alan B. Hoyt, erstwhile salesman of encyclopedias, who yesterday entered pleas of guilty to passing five fictitious checks and of stealing the automobile of his sweetheart.

Hoyt was sentenced by Judge E. D. Thomas in Fulton superior court.

The salesman, whose racket was "giving" encyclopedias to school teachers and then collecting commissions from the publishing company, told the court his real name is Frank H. Kimball, of Hampton, N. H., where he said he had a wife and several children.

But in Atlanta he was known as Hoyt and under that name was indicted on five counts of passing fictitious checks, one count of forgery, one of larceny after trust, and 10 counts of cheating and swindling Atlanta merchants. The last 10 charges are pending in criminal court.

Hoyt was recently captured in Wichita, Kan., and was returned to Fulton county to face justice by two county officers who took him, naked, off an operating table in a hospital after Hoyt's extradition had been approved by the Governor. The emergency operation was an attempted ruse to escape being brought back, the officers said.

Appearing in the grand jury room as a witness against him when he was indicted was a young Atlanta woman whom investigators said was Hoyt's sweetheart. She bought him a car to carry on his "book selling" business and after he had been arrested and paid off several of the fictitious checks Hoyt wrote.

It was in her car that Hoyt left the state, however, after issuing a new batch of bad checks on Atlanta merchants. Police said he left town with another woman.

Hoyt's record in San Francisco, San Diego and in Wichita was introduced in the hearing yesterday as he entered his guilty plea.

The dapper salesman, who asserted he was a World War veteran, wounded in action, said, "I have no valid reason for doing these things."

Camp Fire Girls Will Celebrate Twenty-Fourth Birthday Week

Camp Fire Girls will celebrate their 24th birthday on March 17 and the Atlanta Council has set aside next week to designate it as Birthday Week. Groups will start by attending church together on Sunday in various churches in the city and having part in the service. This is one of the requirements in the local Birthday Week honor, which will be given to all girls who keep one point of the C. F. P. Fire law each day during the week.

Instead of having one Grand Council Fire for the entire council it has been decided to have three—one in Atlanta, one in Decatur and one in East Point. The first will be held at Russell High school on Friday at 7:30 o'clock. The time of the three council fires will be "Hospitality," which is the national birthday project for this year.

Atlanta Camp Fire Girls have worked out many interesting programs in connection with hospitality. Nallawee group of Russell High school, with Miss Kathleen Taylor as guardian, decorated the table of the Camp Fire board of directors meeting on Wednesday. They dressed dolls in costumes of foreign countries and used them around a bowl of daffodils and forsythia. A birthday cake decorated in cross logs and flames, the Camp Fire symbol, and having 24 candles, was placed before the president, Mrs. J. C. Malone, who cut the cake and accepted it with appreciation. Attractive hand-made place cards completed the decorations.

Many groups are making hostess books in which the girls record their friends' birthdays, favorite colors, food, games and other likes and dislikes, then, when plans for parties are being made, these can easily be consulted. Other girls made books of traditions and customs regarding hospitality, or books or ideas for games, stunts, and entertainments for parties. Some original games have been made by one group and many girls have made pieces of handcraft for use in entertaining, such as luncheon cloths, napkins, handpainted trays, coasters, place cards, ash trays and pillow tops.

Hospitality to new ideas, in which the girls have developed new skills and interests, has been used in Camp Fire meetings as part of the program for the girls and to entertain visitors. Talks on map and trail making, a visit to the Weather Bureau, to the Rhodes Memorial Hall and museums.

Miss Sarah Wilkerson To Be Feted at Parties.

Additional parties have been planned for Miss Sarah Wilkerson, a lovely bride-elect, whose marriage will be a brilliant event of March 21. Mrs. J. T. Daniel, the aunt of the bride-elect, entertained with a shower at her home on Clifton road on Thursday.

Yesterday Miss Wilkerson was honored at a luncheon by Miss Betty Shaw at her home on Fairview road. Guests for this occasion were a few intimate friends of the bride-elect. A silver bowl of white narcissus flanked by white tapers in silver candlesticks formed the table decorations and throughout the house white spring flowers were placed in baskets.

Mrs. J. C. Timmerman will honor Miss Wilkerson on Monday at breakfast. The guests will include only a few intimate friends of the bride-elect. Mrs. Paul Turner will give a luncheon on Tuesday at the Tavern tea room honoring this popular bride-elect.

Mr. and Mrs. Hutchinson Give Dinner Party.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Duncan, whose marriage was a recent event; Miss Margorie Carmichael and her visitor, Miss Frances Winston, of Minneapolis, Minn., were honor guests last evening at a dinner given by Mr. and Mrs. William M. Hutchinson at their home on Ponce de Leon avenue. The hosts were assisted in entertaining by Miss Mary Hutchinson, and only a few friends of the honor guests were invited to attend.

Fidelis Class.

The Fidelis Class of Capitol Avenue Baptist church met at the church on Thursday and the president, Mrs. W. W. Chapman, was in charge and Mrs. Hal Greer led the devotional. Selections were rendered by the Harmony Twins, Miss Mildred Rambeau and J. T. Kilpatrick.

Others present were Mesdames H. A. Barfield, J. W. Bishop, T. C. Browley, J. H. Carmichael, C. G. Coursey, Bert Dickey, Louise Fox, R. C. Goodwin, S. H. Grogan, O. R. Jones, Paul Johnson, J. L. PSYCHIC BIDDING.

The average player's bidding should be as honest and as accurate as his sense of value can possibly make it. The various types of psychic bids should be left severely alone. They are dynamite in all but expert hands and, even then, they have been known to explode with a loud and painful detonation.

It cannot be denied, however, that an occasional psychic bid, perfectly timed, may have almost miraculous success. Today's hand is an example. North dealer.

Both sides vulnerable.

The bidding:

North East South West
1 H. 1 Sp. 2 N.T. Pass
1 N.T. Pass 5 Cl. Pass
5 Hts. (final bid)

South's strategy in bidding two no trump over the spade bid was motivated almost entirely by the fact that the opponents had the superior suit. He could, it is true, have pre-empted in hearts, but that course would act as a spur rather than as a deterrent on West. The spade suit already having been declared, he felt that strong measures were required to keep the opponents from bidding to game, if only as a sacrifice attempt. And if they did he feared that his freakish distribution and killing length in hearts would result in the "sacrifice" turning into a real victory.

As a matter of fact, West probably would have assisted the spade bid over either a three or four heart bid by South but, over the two no trump, it would have required extreme boldness. His pass can hardly be criticized.

The strategy almost failed because North naturally and properly had his own aspirations after the two no trump bid. His four no trump was conventional and it required a good deal of restraint for him to bid only five hearts after South's response. He probably allowed wide latitude for South's psychic tendency.

It is interesting to note that five spades could not have been defeated, nor could the five heart contract, so deviously reached.

TODAY'S QUESTION.
Question: Dealer, vulnerable, opens the bidding with one heart. I am second hand, and hold spade x x, heart A x x x x, diamond K Q, club K 10 x. What should I bid?
Answer: Pass. Your hand is best suited to "trapping" opponents.

Hints That Lead To Chic

BY CONNIE

Your Shoes Speak First.

In selecting the correct accessories for an ensemble, your first step is directed towards the shoe question, because your shoes carry the whole theme of your outfit.

The new shoes are not just the usual brown or black, oxford or pump, but exciting colors of London tan, blue and luggage gray—in such fascinating styles as the tress shoe, the saddle strap and the shawl shoe.

When you look for your new shoes, you will find a rejuvenation in style and color, and you will like it—perhaps not so much at first—but it is one of those things that grow on you.

The top shoe sketched above is the "saddle strap" found in gray or blue kid and black patent leather, about $8.75. For sports and resort wear, the second shoe from the top is very smart, and comes in white bucko with a brown kid trim. The heel is leather. It is priced about $12.75. The shoe

NANCY PAGE

Waffles of Gingerbread Dough Are Delicious

By FLORENCE La GANKE.

Nancy's arm was not giving her as much trouble as it had. She still went to the doctor's twice a week for massage. He would work with the arm until Nancy gritted her teeth to keep from shrieking with pain, but after every treatment she found that the muscles were a little more flexible, a little more ready to respond without "creaking" as it were. This gave her hopes for completely recovered use of the arm. The doctor told her to use it with moderation, but to see that each day she lifted it a little higher, twisted it back and around a mite farther. "Only co-operation can get it back to normal," he said. Nancy knew he was right. She knew she must use the arm daily. So she was not as upset as she might have been when she found some friends were passing through town and wanted to come to see her. That meant getting a lunch ready for them. She wondered what she could prepare that would taste appetizing and still not be too fussy to prepare.

She looked through the pantry and refrigerator and finally prepared this luncheon. The first course was cream buttering crackers lightly and then sprinkling them with paprika before of mushroom soup. She had cans of this on the shelves. With this she served paprika crackers, prepared by next to the bottom is designed after the sports woman's own heart. A lace-up oxford with a shawl tongue. Smart, isn't it—and costs only about $8.75. Found in luggage gray or white bucko.

The shoe sketched at the bottom is a new version of the tress model that has made such a hit, for a walking shoe. It's fastener is the ever-intriguing zipper. It comes in London tan, calf, blue, gray or white bucko. Note the square toe, a new seasonal feature which is also emphasized in the heel. It costs about $8.75.

Police in Atlanta and Hapeville were on the lookout last night for three masked bandits who held up James Knox, paymaster for a Griffin hosiery mill, and escaped with approximately $1,500 shortly before noon yesterday.

The lookout notice was relayed to Atlanta, Hapeville and Fulton county police after Knox reported that three masked men drove up behind him just after he had left a bank in downtown Griffin and ordered him to stop. Brandishing shotguns, the men took the money Knox was carrying and drove off toward the Atlanta highway, he told police.

Police here were warned to watch for a green Buick sedan, carrying three men, one of whom was described as being about five feet, six inches tall and weighing 100 pounds.

The woman was also booked on drunken and disorderly conduct and fighting charges. Crawford was released on $100 bond and later posted $27 collateral. His companion was freed on $50 bond.

Hearing on the case will come up in recorder's court at 8:30 o'clock this morning.

she set them under the broiler flame for a moment.

Next she prepared a casserole, with alternate layers of sliced boiled potatoes and sliced hard-cooked egg. The white sauce went over the layers.

On top she put more white sauce and grated cheese. This baked until the mixture was bubbling. With this she served celery, ripe olives and pickled watermelon rind. She planned a salad but found she was out of lettuce. So she used the relish. The dessert was gingerbread waffles served with plain, smooth cream. There was plenty of fragrant, hot drip coffee and much content and conversation during the whole meal.

Friendly Counsel

By CAROLINE CHATFIELD.

Problems of general interest submitted by readers will be discussed in this column. Correspondence invited. Four columns each week. Send to: Caroline Chatfield, care of The Atlanta Constitution.

"She's what I call a peach of a wife," said Mr. B. of the lady who sat across the room from him. "What do you mean by that?" asked Mrs. B. with some acidity. "She is self-dom home. She and her husband go separate ways, have separate friends and as far as I can see their marriage is a sort of loose arrangement, an every-man-for-himself-and-the-devil-catch-the-hindmost sort of affair. I do catch that ideal by any means." "I say she is a peach because she is always pleasant and agreeable, perfectly willing for L. to go his way. I have heard him say that she never asked him any questions that irritated him, consequently he was always frank with her. She is self-sufficient and able to amuse herself. When he comes in tired from a hard day, he doesn't have to worry about her entertainment. She stays in with him if he likes and if she has a notion to leave, she has plenty of friends she can call on to trot along with her. Neither is around the other's neck. We men are not partial to handcuffs, balls and chains, cells and solitary confinement. We must prefer our jailors make trusties of us. Why, I say Mrs. L. is a peach of a wife. She's made a trusty of L."

Mrs. B. now somewhat embarrassed by the truth the conversation had taken before her husband came again. "I think that is a pretty low conception of matrimony, Mrs. B. If you have any conception of it I must remind you that the choice of trusties is left to the discretion of the jailor. Maybe Mr. L. is also a peach."

Moral: Husbands never spank your wives by showing yourselves envious of other husbands. Particularly in a bad play in public. Few women can sit silently and sweetly and hear sung the praises of the virtuous wife, if any mention is made of virtues that are not incarnate in their own persons. Few can refrain from open fight, insulting innuendoes, tiger attacks on husbands who intimate that their own brand of domestic felicity is not utterly utterly vine. Why? Because however poor excuse a wife may be is prouder of her wifehood than she is of anything else in the world and consequently extremely sensitive to any intimation from her husband that she has failed him on any score. No matter how slight the opportunity for other subjects and toward other people she is thin skinned with him. To sit in a group of her friends and hear her husband recommend some other wife for beauty, wit, wisdom, or even common sense, good cooking, or smart grooming is more than she can swallow without choking.

She will take the criticism, implied or expressed in the privacy of her own bedroom with no more than a few sharp words or a short snarl as retort but let her public hear her husband toast his friend's spouse and she sharpens her claws for attack.

It isn't strange after all. Everybody is inclined to be touchy on the point of his own profession. A doctor who will take any amount of dragging about his golf game won't be amiable if any aspersions are cast on his professional competence. A writer who has just written a best seller and received the most flattering criticism from every quarter but one. One critic called him a show-off and another a swaggerer and he was so infuriated by it that he straightaway forgot all the complimentary notices his book had received and lost no opportunity to call the offending critic names not fit to print and also to tell the world how the criticism burnt him up.

Wifehood is a woman's profession, her game, her glory, her pride and joy. She can't take any dragging from anybody about the way she fulfills, least of all from her husband.

AGENT OF COUNTY, WOMAN, ARRESTED

Louis H. Crawford Charged With Drunk, Disorderly Conduct, Fighting.

Arrested yesterday morning in a downtown hotel room, Louis H. Crawford, special agent of the Fulton county commission, was charged by police with drunk and disorderly conduct and fighting.

The woman was also booked on drunken and disorderly conduct and fighting charges. Crawford was released on $100 bond and later posted $27 collateral. His companion was freed on $50 bond.

Hearing on the case will come up in recorder's court at 8:30 o'clock this morning.

she set them under the broiler flame for a moment.

Next she prepared a casserole, with alternate layers of sliced boiled potatoes and sliced hard-cooked egg. The white sauce went over the layers.

On top she put more white sauce and grated cheese. This baked until the mixture was bubbling. With this she served celery, ripe olives and pickled watermelon rind. She planned a salad but found she was out of lettuce. So she used the relish. The dessert was gingerbread waffles served with plain, smooth cream. There was plenty of fragrant, hot drip coffee and much content and conversation during the whole meal.

'YOUR FIGURE, MADAME!'

By IDA JEAN KAIN.

BRING YOUR FIGURE UP RIGHT.

To have a lovely figure when you reach the ripe old age of 30, you need a few simple rules to stand up for your figures now.

The debutante slump, you know, encourages figure faults. You are young, you are plump, you are full of curves, and you are not yet old enough to have your figure up right and your body in shape.

While you are young and plump, and your muscles are in the proper position, you can't take on humpy-dumpy lines later. You have everything in your favor—don't waste it!

How should you stand? Tall! Of course, there are certain things to keep in mind, such as head up, shoulders back but relaxed, and abdominal muscles firm. You are actually in a plumb line. However, thinking of each segment separately might develop self-consciousness, strained posture. Posture should be easy, not tense, and the best rule is to stand as tall as possible.

Do you realize that good posture is the foundation of your figure? The way you stand, sit, and walk (whether you have thought of it or not) has a beautiful carriage. One cannot have a superb figure or belong to a convincing order of beauty without an erect, graceful bearing.

How can you keep your figure and posture perfect? Keep your vitality high and your muscles supple. Outdoor activities, plenty of fresh air and exercise, lots of beauty sleep, and milk and fresh fruits and vegetables in your menu—all these help you to grow up a healthy, well-toned figure.

Walking is one of the best things you can do for your figure, if you do it correctly. Swing along, free and easy, but be sure to put your weight on the lower abdominal muscles. Now is the time to build a good muscular girdle to maintain a nice, straight front line. To put your best foot forward, point your toes straight ahead. Toeing out weakens your arches—besides, it makes you knock-kneed!

Some of you are beginning to worry about your weight. You are actually in the overweight class, then you should subtract calories. Out down on desserts, candy, in-between-meal sweets and bedtime refreshments. Eat your three good meals a day, minus the fattening desserts, and you will gradually reach normal weight. Any marked overweight should be under the care of your family physician.

Whatever you do, don't "diet" for in doing so you take chances with your health and beauty. Ten pounds of roundness at your age is accompanied by higher vitality than is ultra-thinness. Perhaps you think now that your bust is a little large but don't make the mistake of flattening it with a tight brassiere. This weakens the supporting muscles and leads to a sagging bustline.

Roundness is a part of youth, and as you grow a bit older your round face and "teen-age" figure will slim down, so don't let worry about it put wrinkles in your forehead.

Keep healthy to be happy and stand up straight and tall to be lovely.

My Day

By ELEANOR ROOSEVELT

DAYTON, Ohio.—We got off the train in Dayton this morning at 7:45. I know nothing bleaker than meeting people at that hour of the morning, and I was terribly sorry for the mayor, the head of the Chamber of Commerce and the ladies of the committee, who had to get up that early to be on hand. However, they seemed quite cheerful and were very kind.

The usual photographs were taken and then we were kindly and very considerably left alone in the Hotel Van Cleve, where we bathed and breakfasted in peace and quiet.

Mrs. Scheider and I lunched alone and had a very friendly, chatty boy waiting on us who, I think, was really grieved that we did not stay longer.

Two directors of the WPA work in the city came in for a few minutes and at 2 o'clock I drove out to the Wright air field, an army field where all planes are tested before they are used in the service. The planes are beautiful things in themselves, and the field is a grand field with no obstructions around it.

They showed me the latest Douglas bomber and, like all other things military, the remarkable ingenuity of the machinery made for destruction, filled me with awe. I hope the day will come when all that inventing and mechanical genius will be used for other purposes.

From there we drove to the Veterans' hospital, where 2,600 veterans are cared for. A few of them were veterans of the War Between the States, a large number of them Spanish-American War veterans, but the great majority World War veterans. I did not have time to see the whole hospital but visited a few nurses and yeomenettes and saw one patient, who is a World War nurse I have known for some time, Miss Mary Garnett Moore.

I stopped for a moment at the district office of the WPA which directs the work of four counties, and then came back to the hotel to meet Mr. S. B. Weston, youth administrator for the state, and Mr. Bruce Musick, director for the district. We visited a boys' club where a number of National Youth Administration people are to work, and then a colored community center where more NYA people are at work, chiefly in supervising young people in athletics and in arts and crafts occupations.

Now I am back in the hotel and in a few minutes I will dress and go to a dinner given for Judge Florence Allen before my speech tonight.

Spring Garden Notes

Here in our out-of-door living room we enjoy the beauty of our flowering shrubs, the spires, viburnums, forsythia, weigela, deutzia with the evergreen abelia, azalea, ligustrum and coniferous shrubs or trees added for accent and winter beauty. We allow a space of 5 feet wide for this border, with the taller growing shrubs in the back.

Not straight rows, for we find the informal arrangement more pleasing. Deciduous flowering shrubs do not belong in a formal garden. The lowest growing ones we pull out to form promontories. We also find that our shrubs look best planted in groups, usually three of a kind.

Plant them far enough apart so that each shrub has its own individuality, but comes close enough to its neighbor to make a pleasing mass. We feature one variety by repeating it in ordered succession to give harmony. We use shrubs of varied height to prevent a monotonous skyline. Occasional small trees are most helpful.

The dogwood has two seasons of notable beauty, appearing like a late snow in spring, and a burst of flame in fall, with red berries all winter. These berries both add beauty and at the same time attract birds.

Barberry, Lonicera morrowii, holly and the Yucca are also very berry-bearing and will be found attractive grouped in a far corner, together with bird-boxes and a bird-bath. Birds are an important part of any garden. They destroy countless insects and larvae, at the same time delighting us with their song and the feel of life and movement that they add to our gardens.

In Washday Rebellion

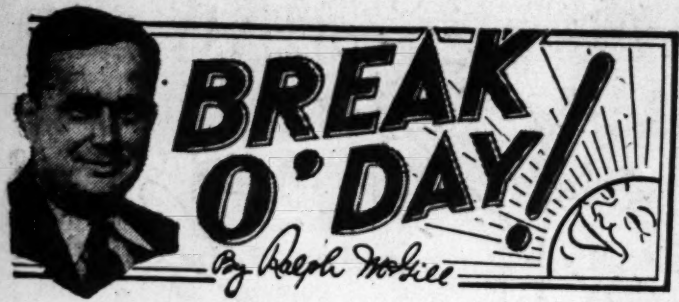

Reports from all over the country reveal that a new kind of washday has come to America. Millions of women have revolted against the drudgery of old-fashioned washdays—and now SOAK clothes whiter in safe Rinso suds.

How it works

Rinso gives rich, lively suds that lather out dirt. The suds act almost like a magnet—safely soaking out dirt and keeping it out. Clothes come real snowy, colors come bright and gay. Yet you don't have to scrub or boil a thing. Even stubborn cuffs and edges come clean with a little gentle rubbing between the fingers. Rinso suds are thick and lasting, keep to hardest water. The makers of 33 famous washing machines recommend Rinso.

Cracker Regulars, Rookie Pitchers Face Bogalusa Sunday

It was just yesterday it became necessary to call Mr. William Alexander and accuse him and Mr. Harry Mehre of being quite old-fashioned.

Mr. Harry Mehre's spring football practice at the University of Georgia is concluded. Mr. Alexander's, which began later than Mr. Mehre's, is drawing to a close.

Yet neither included the latest innovation in spring practice.

Tap dancing is the innovation. At Howard College, the Birmingham institution which stunned the football world early last fall by tying Alabama, a dancing teacher has been engaged.

All the ponderous tackles, fat guards, agile ends and elusive backs are being taught to tap dance.

"How about this?" I asked Mr. Alexander. "You and Mr. Mehre put on practices which must be dull in comparison with the practices at Howard. Imagine seeing Dutch Konneman tap dancing. Imagine hearing the clicking heels of Big Bad Bill Hartman at the peak of his dance."

"No tap dancing for us," said Mr. Alexander. "You persist in retaining the same old-fashioned type football practice periods?"

"Yes," said Mr. Alexander. "As a matter of fact, I am trying to get those who go to ballroom dances to quit that. If I catch one tap dancing I will do a tap dance on a certain section of his anatomy."

That seems to settle the issue. I am sure Mr. Mehre concurs.

The idea at Howard seems to be that tap dancing will make the boys more active. If they can win enough games next fall they may have all the boys dancing instead of tackling the dummy.

THE GRAHAM PLAN BEGINS TO ACT.

The famous Graham plan seems to have reacted on Mr. Carl Snavely much as if he had had graham crackers in his bed for several consecutive evenings.

Mr. Snavely reluctantly quits North Carolina to go to Cornell, where the alumni recently deposed Gloomy Gil Dobie, who had coached there for 16 years.

There seems to be a disposition at other Southern Conference institutions to regard the Graham plan as just another one of those things, which indeed, it likely is. There is no telling what reason Mr. Snavely will assign for quitting at North Carolina. But he must have figured that he, alone, would be the coach who would have to be honest with regard to the rule.

The Graham plan, let me hasten to say, is one of those athletic plans very idealistic and impossible. It would penalize an athlete for his ability to play football, basketball or any other sport well. It would put a stigma upon him at the outset, making him ineligible for any loan or any sort of financial help because of his athletic ability.

It is strictly your business if you use your own money to finance a young man whom you deem to be of good character and worthy to enter your dear old alma mater. But the Graham plan would boot him right out the door if you were using your own money on the boy so that he might lug that football for your old team.

The plan was the product of Dr. Frank P. Graham, a very fine educator and whose institution is a liberal one, minus the narrowness one finds at many institutions. He believes in his athletic plan. Mr. Snavely seems to be the only one really worried. Other coaches are reported as going along very cheerfully indeed. The Graham plan seems to have no enforcement powers. Except, of course, at North Carolina.

THE REPORTED EXPLANATION.

The current explanation of why Dr. Graham interested himself in the athletic problem is a unique one.

One of the alumni is reported to have forgot to whom he was to send his contribution to the football

CORNELL SIGNS CARL SNAVELY AS HEAD COACH

Tarheel Mentor Succeeds Gil Dobie; To Report April 1.

By Alan Gould.

NEW YORK, March 13.—(AP)—Cornell University athletic authorities tonight officially announced the appointment of Carl G. Snavely, of the University of North Carolina, as new head coach of football, replacing "Gloomy" Gil Dobie.

Snavely, head coach at North Carolina for the past two seasons, will take charge at Ithaca, N. Y., this spring under a three-year contract, understood to call for an annual salary of $8,500.

Negotiations with Snavely were closed early this week but formal announcement was withheld pending the acceptance of his resignation at North Carolina, where his contract had no year more to run.

TARHEELS GIVE IN. The Tarheels were reluctant to let Snavely go, it was understood, and gave him his release tonight at a meeting of athletic authorities in Chapel Hill, N. C., after failing in an eleven-hour effort to have him remain another year at North Carolina.

Cornell's announcement ended speculation concerning the country-wide search for a successor to the veteran Dobie, who resigned last February 1, under fire, after 16 years as head coach. Two days after he resigned Dobie signed with Boston College.

Snavely's availability came as a surprise because it had been assumed by football observers he was solidly established at North Carolina. He took charge of the Tarheel gridiron forces after a successful seven-year term as head coach at Bucknell University, Lewisburg, Pa., alma mater of the immortal Christy Mathewson.

FINER RECORD. In his two years at North Carolina, Snavely's varsity pupils lost only two games, one to Tennessee in 1934 and the other to Duke, late last season, in the south's most stunning upset of the campaign. Despite this setback North Carolina captured the Southern conference championship and was ranked among the nation's "first ten" college teams.

Snavely was Cornell's selection for the job of reviving big red football fortunes after an intensive six weeks search by James Lynch, the new athletic director. Applications from nearly 100 coaches were considered and several dozen interviewed.

Due to report at Ithaca, N. Y., on April 1 and take charge of spring practice, scheduled a week later, Snavely faces the task of organizing comparatively green material for the toughest schedule any Cornell varsity team has had since pre-war days, college football teams coached by Carl G. Snavely for the past two years.

Netmen To Bowl Today

The Constitution's gigantic bowling tournament, which opens at 2 o'clock this afternoon, has attracted a record field, among which will be Donald Elkins, at the left, and Marion (Champ) Reese, both of the Baltimore Tennis Club. These boys, who are stars in the net game, are comparatively newcomers to bowling, but have come forward with a bang in recent weeks and will be out for those medals today. John Lewis Beats McAvoy on Points

Negro Shows Little Regard for Britisher's Punch, Wins Decisively To Retain Title.

NEW YORK, March 13.—(AP)—With fine disregard for his rival's vaunted punch or the implied jinx of Friday the 13th, John Henry Lewis, Arizona negro, successfully defended the world's light heavyweight championship tonight by decisively outpointing Jock McAvoy, British challenger, in a 15-round match at Madison Square Garden.

Lewis, the aggressor from start to finish, spiked McAvoy's heaviest weapons with the speed and shiftness of his attack. The champion outboxed, outmaneuvered and particularly at close range, clearly outpunched the challenger, hailed as Britain's best pugilistic product since the war and a potential threat to World Champion James J. Braddock.

The decisiveness of McAvoy's defeat was entirely unexpected. However, and a shock to experts who had seen him flash convincing form in his few previous American fights, including a one-round knockout of Eddie (Babe) Risko, American middleweight champion, in a non-title bout in the Garden last December.

On the Associated Press score card, Lewis won 11 rounds, with three credited to McAvoy and one even. The decision of Ring Arthur Donovan and the two judges was unanimous. Nevertheless a good share of the crowd, including 12,980 cash customers who contributed to gate receipts of $37,712, obviously was strongly partisan in the Briton's favor and roundly booed the verdict.

Lewis had a four-pound pull in the weights, scaling 172 1/4 to McAvoy's 168 1/4.

Joe Louis was introduced before the main bout. The crowd gave the brown bomber an ovation to his first title defense since lifting 175-pound honors at St. Louis last October 31 from Bob Olin, impressed ring-side critics with his speed, boxing, and all-around punching. The rangy negro carried no dynamite in either fist but hit often and effectively.

Flushed by the decisiveness of his triumph the champion proclaimed his willingness to invade the heavyweight ranks to "kick the champion" Jimmy Braddock, or, "if there's enough dough in it" go so far as to risk his chin against the brown bomber, Joe Louis. The latter's trainer, Jack Blackburn, guided Lewis to his victory tonight and the bomber himself was a ring-side spectator.

Newsom May Quit If Red Sox Score

ORLANDO, Fla., March 13.—(AP) Indicative of the scrappy spirit of the Washington Senators, Buck Newsom allowed today he might quit baseball if Boston scores a run on him in their grapefruit league opener here tomorrow.

"But there's no danger," boasted Newsom, "I've won the first two of Cronin's ain't got a chance. If I was sure of my support, I'd bet they wouldn't get a man on second base."

Manager Bucky Harris nominated Ed Linke and Pte Appleton to follow Newsom and said either John Stone or Carl Reynolds would play right field in place of Dee Miles, who has a sore neck.

Hendrix and Mulloy Win Hard Battles

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., March 13.—(AP)—A hard-fought battle for Carroll Turner, Miami, 10-8, 7-5, and Gardener Mulloy, Miami, was extended three sets to eliminate Mel Tarpley, Tampa, 6-3, 1-6, 6-4, here today in the quarter-finals of the Surf Club invitational tennis tournament.

Tomorrow Hendrix plays Mulloy, and Charles Harris, West Palm Beach, battles Vernon Marcum, Lakeland.

Harris had little trouble winning from Weston Painter, Minneapolis, 6-3, 6-0. Marcum advanced when Martin Busby, Miami, defaulted because of a sprained back.

Albany and Moultrie Advance to Finals

MOULTRIE, Ga., March 13.—(AP) The Albany Blues and Moultrie Steers, two high-geared quintets, advanced to the finals of the Georgia amateur gold medal tourney for 1936 here last night.

Working smoothly and flawlessly, the Blues defeated Adel Athletic Club,

DOUBLES EVENT CATCHES FANCY OF ATLANTANS

Play Begins at 2 O'Clock; 112 Teams Now Signed; No Entry Fee.

By Thad Holt.

Atlanta bowlers take to the alleys today and tonight in the biggest one-day tournament in the city's history. The Atlanta Constitution's mammoth doubles duckpin event, its fourth in as many years, will get underway this afternoon at 2 o'clock with sessions to follow at 5 and 8 o'clock.

Last night the entry list had reached the unprecedented total of 112 teams (224 persons) including all past champions, and officials predicted a last-minute rush to the Bowling Center by scores of duckpin knockers who neglected to go through the formality of signing an entry blank. There is no entry fee.

This is a friendly tournament. Since the handicap system will be in effect, every team will have a chance to win. It is noticeable that among the record-breaking field there is an unusual number of women, many of whom are crackjacks at the art. Three groups of brothers, a mother and daughter team and a father and son team will be in there rolling for the handsome gold medals.

Ed Plant, of the Bowling Center, who must be given a lion's share of credit for the rise of bowling to a major sport here, stated last night that the interest in this year's meet was truly amazing and that it was far and away the biggest event of its kind ever staged in Atlanta. The popular Plant predicted some of the most exciting competition in the history of this annual affair when the balls start rolling today.

This is the first opportunity the vast bowling populace of our city has had to participate in a doubles event this season. The tourney has caught the fancy of the new and the old guard. It's poor little duckpin, today. Anything might happen. And probably will.

The complete entry list follows:

NEW YORK, March 12.—(AP)—Steady selling throughout almost the entire session today in the curb market resulted in a net decline of 1 3/4 or more points.

GEORGIA RANKED HIGH IN DEMOCRATIC STATES

85 Per Cent of Citizens Would Vote Roosevelt for President Today.

NEW YORK, March 13.—Maine is the most republican state in the nation today, followed in order by Vermont and New Hampshire. The most democratic states are Mississippi, South Carolina and Georgia.

These statements are based on a nation-wide poll of present-day political sentiment just completed by the American Institute of Public Opinion.

Citizens to whom the Institute sent ballots by mail or by personal interviewer were asked to indicate for whom they would vote if the election went today. The result in the six states at the two ends of the list was as follows for the candidates of the two major parties:

Mississippi 91% 9%
South Carolina 89 11
Georgia 85 15
V. Hampshire 83 17
Vermont 39 61
Maine 33 67

A comparison between the figures in the current poll and those of a poll on the same question two months ago shows that Roosevelt has increased his strength a total of six points in the three southern states—two points in each state, but that the republicans have gained five points in the three New England states—three in Maine and two in Vermont.

The statistical accuracy of the polls of the American Institute of Public Opinion depends on five "controls": Ballots come by mail and by personal interviewer from each state in proportion to its voting population; in each state correct proportions are maintained for persons at the relief level for city and farm dwellers, for young persons who have come of voting age since 1932 and for persons who in 1932 voted for Roosevelt, Hoover, Thomas and others.

Complete figures from the Institute's monthly political barometer will be published in The Constitution Sunday.
